

What are the benefits of a concession card?

As people get older, they may need more medical treatment and rely more on pharmaceuticals. The costs can quickly add up. The government provides several types of concession cards that may entitle the holder to discounts.

What cards are available?

The main concession cards provided through Centrelink are:

- Commonwealth Seniors Health card – gives older Australians cheaper medicines and some concessions.
- Health care card – automatically granted if you are receiving certain Centrelink payments.
- Low income health care card – gives you access to cheaper medicines and some concessions if you're on a low income.
- Pensioner concession card – automatically granted if you receive certain payments from Centrelink.

Certain beneficiaries of DVA pensions may be entitled to DVA specific health cards - Gold card, White card or Orange card. These may provide a greater range of discounts than a Centrelink card. Eligibility details and the range of concessions should be checked with DVA.

What concessions are provided?

Concession cards generally provide discounts on eligible prescription medicines and medical practitioners may choose to bulk bill.

Other concessions vary depending on the card type and may also vary from State to State. These may include concessions from State and local Government authorities such as discounts on:

- property and water rates,
- energy bills,
- public transport, and
- motor vehicle registration.

Details for your card's benefits should be checked carefully to determine if the discounts only.

Energy bill relief from 1 July 2023

The Australian Government and state and territory governments are working together to provide targeted electricity bill relief to eligible households and small businesses.

Visit www.energy.gov.au and search 'Energy Bill Relief Fund for households' to check if you're eligible to receive up to $500 in energy bill relief.
